

FEDERAL CRIMINAL PROSECUTION FIELD CLINIC

Students work in the Criminal Division of the United States Attorney's Office for the Southern District of New York, one of the busiest and most-respected prosecutorial offices in the federal system. Students work closely with Assistant United States Attorneys representing the federal government on a wide range of criminal matters, and take a class studying critical practical and ethical issues that arise in federal criminal prosecution.