1. Student Writing Awards and Publication:

The paper of Nicole Duke won an honorable mention in the ACCTM-NYSBar ADR Section Writing Competition, earning her the right to have the paper published in the American Journal of Mediation.

2. The Cardozo Dispute Resolution Society (“CDRS”)

For the 2018-2019 school year, Cardozo Dispute Resolution Society co-hosted the following programs:

The Wonderful Story of the Repeal of "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" and of How the Military Did ADR Proud (co-sponsored with the Cardozo Journal of Conflict Resolution). Speaker Colonel Linell A. Letendre presented her experience as a member of the team that helped spearhead the Pentagon's review that eventually led to the repeal of 'Don't Ask, Don't Tell', and Professor Hal Abramson moderated.

Professor Michal Alberstein of Bar Ilan University in her talk, The Changing Roles of Judges in an Age of Vanishing Trials. Professor Alberstein led a dynamic discussion on the shift of traditional judicial roles. Judges are no longer limited to traditional decision making, and instead play a diverse set of roles including mediator and settlement master. Professor Alberstein presenting data showing that judges' alternate dispute resolution roles are usurping their classical judicial roles.

An Alumni Mixer (co-sponsored with the ADR Competition Honor Society).

3. The Cardozo Journal of Conflict Resolution

Generous funding was provided by Jed Melnick, a founding editor of the Journal, along with Touro Law School, to sponsor the 2019 Jed D. Melnick Annual Symposium on The New Singapore Mediation Convention. The symposium was held at Cardozo on March 18, 2019. Also supporting the event were: the International Academy of Mediators, the Federal Bar Association, JAMS, the International Centre for Dispute Resolution of the AAA, the NYSBar Association Dispute Resolution Section, and Professor David Weiss of the NJCU Institute for Dispute Resolution.

CJCR gave its prestigious 2019 International Advocate for Peace Award to Sir John Paul McCartney at the Cardozo graduation in David Geffen Hall on May 28, 2019.

January Intensive Courses

- Collaborative Family Law, Professor Adam Berner. Introduced in January 2012, this interactive class introduces students to Collaborative Family Law, a new and growing alternative process, which provides a framework and skill set to help attorneys collaboratively work in attorney-client teams to resolve conflicts out of court. Through a combination of lecture, demonstration, discussion and role play exercises, students learn the fundamental concepts and basic skills that underlie the Collaborative Law framework. The class is structured around the actual stages of the collaborative negotiation process, from the initial consultation with clients and assessing appropriateness of the process, to the joint meetings, through the "end game" of negotiating a collaborative settlement.

- (IMAP) Representation in Mediation, Professor David White: This intensive, interactive course introduces students to negotiation and mediation theory and develops strategies and skills for effective attorney representation in mediation. The course examines attorney responsibilities in advising clients about dispute resolution options, in preparing both the case and the client for mediation, and in representing the client effectively in the mediation session itself. There is substantial reading assignments prior to the commencement of the course. The program culminates in the students participating in a mock mediation coached by seasoned mediators.
- Negotiation Theories and Skills, Professor Michael Tsur: This seminar provides students an introduction to both theoretical and practice-based foundations of negotiation. Through simulation-based exercises and classroom discussions, the course covers the elements of both integrative and distributive bargaining; barriers to agreement and strategies to overcome them; the nature of dialogue; negotiation power; the role of culture, gender and race in negotiations; negotiation preparation, tactics, initial and responsive strategies, and ethics.
- Representation in Arbitration, Professor Brian Farkas: This skills-focused course prepares students to represent clients in private arbitration proceedings. After discussing the basic legal framework for arbitration in the United States, the course will delve into practical lawyering skills that are unique to arbitration. Topics will include drafting arbitration agreements and selecting arbitrators, as well as advocacy techniques for opening and closing statements, direct examination, and cross-examination. The relationship between arbitration and the courts will also be considered, with particular attention to motions to stay or compel arbitration, and motions to vacate or confirm arbitral awards. Broader client counseling questions will also be considered, including advising clients on selecting the most appropriate conflict resolution mechanism for their dispute. Students will emerge from the course with a firm grasp of the basic vocabulary, procedure and advocacy skills necessary to represent clients in arbitration.

5. The Certificate in Dispute Resolution

The following 7 students received a Certificate at graduation:

- Sherry Ashkins
- Chelsea Gallay
- Nicholas Gliagias
- Aaron Horn
- Courtney Kaplar
- Michelle Shaykevich
- Moshe Warga

6. Other Conferences and Presentations at Cardozo

The NYS Bar Association Section of Dispute Resolution presented a 3 day Commercial Arbitration Training for Arbitrators and Counsel CLE Program (6/2019).

7. Competitions—The ADR Competition Honor Society

The Cardozo/ABA Intraschool Negotiation Competition

The Intraschool Negotiation Competition was held on March 12, 2019, with 56 teams, 112 students, competing.

St. Johns Annual Securities Dispute Resolution Triathlon

The Annual Securities Dispute Resolution Triathlon is a joint initiative of the Hugh L. Carey Center for Dispute Resolution at St. John's School of Law and the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA). This year, the competition was held on October 13 and 14, 2018 in New York City. The competition consists of a negotiation, mediation, and arbitration round. Cardozo sent two teams to compete. The first team, consisting of Senior Editor, Joshua Roseman, Lu Stefanos, and Emily Sappol, finished first in the arbitration round and third in negotiation out of 20 teams. The second team consisted of Eian Weiner, Yarden Sivan, and Danielle Tuluca. The teams were coached by Editor-in-Chief, Nick Anselmi, and Senior Editor, Angela Li respectively, with assistance from Cardozo Professor David Weisenfeld.

NYSBA AAA Judith S. Kaye Arbitration Competition

The ADR Competition Honor Society sent two teams to participate in the annual NYSBA AAA Judith S. Kaye Arbitration Competition from November 2 - 3, 2018. The teams were comprised of Trisha Aggarwal, Neelam Bhagrath, Zachary Brooks, Lauren Cohen, Hannah Katz, and Dean Linn. Students were coached by Associate Editor Sammi Bershad and Senior Editor Carly Manger, with assistance from Problem Editor Matt Greenfield. The Competition was administered and conducted as a real arbitration; organized under the supervision of the American Arbitration Association (AAA), governed by the AAA's Commercial Arbitration Rules, and judged by the most established AAA arbitrators in the State of New York.

The American Bar Association Negotiation Competition

The 2018 ABA Regional Negotiation Competition was hosted at New York Law School from November 2 - 3, 2018. Coached by Senior Editors Kayla Callahan and Alex Sable, Cardozo sent three teams consisting of Associate Editor Zoya Mian, Executive Editor Dinu Ahmed, Managing Editor Cami Lopez, Krysta Hartley, Alexia Landesman, and Armand Zappa. The competition simulates legal negotiations in which law students, acting as lawyers, negotiate a series of legal problems. The simulations consist of a common set of facts known by all participants and confidential information known only to the participants representing a particular side. All of the simulations deal with the same general topic, but the negotiation situation varies with each round and level of the competition.

New York Law School Intellectual Property Negotiation Competition

On October 10, 2018 New York Law School hosted their Intellectual Property Negotiation Competition giving students the opportunity to deal with current issues in today's media. The disputes centered on copyright and trademark issues with students being judged on their effectiveness as counsel. Cardozo's team comprised of Lauren Gershoni and Andy Goldwasser. Senior Editor Courtney Kaplar served as coach.

ICC International Commercial Mediation Competition

Since 2007, Cardozo has sent a team to the ICC International Commercial Mediation Competition in Paris, an invitation-only event that gathers student competitors from around the world. Students participated in a week-long intensive competition at the ICC Headquarters in Paris, France from February 7 - 13, 2019. The purpose of this prestigious competition is to encourage the teaching and learning of the effective use of mediation while empowering tomorrow's legal practitioners to meet the dispute resolution needs of an increasingly cross-cultural and global market. Senior Editor, Courtney Kaplar, Aaron Slansky, Eian Weiner, and Federico Zepeda competed on behalf of Cardozo. The team won the "Distinction in Creative Solution Generator" award. Cardozo's team was coached by Editor-in-Chief, Nick Anselmi as head coach and Professor Donna Erez-Navot.

Fordham National Basketball Negotiation Competition

The Fordham National Basketball Negotiation Competition is an interscholastic negotiation competition hosted by the Fordham Sports Law Forum in New York City. The competition consists of head-to-head negotiations between teams of two competitors. The negotiation problems are based on real world scenarios relating to the NBA, such as trades, free agency signings, and sponsorship deals. This year's Competition was held on February 22-23, 2019, and Cardozo sent two teams to compete, both of which advanced to the semifinal round. The teams consisted of Danielle Tuluca, Dean Linn, Yarden Sivan, and Zach Brooks. The teams were coached by ADRCHS Problem Editors Samantha Cooper and Matt Greenfield.

The American Bar Association Representation in Mediation Competition

Cardozo hosted and competed in the ABA Representation in Mediation Competition this year. Cardozo had two teams, consisting of Lauren Cohen, Hannah Katz, Trisha Aggarwal, and Andy Goldwasser, and they competed from February 24-25, 2019. This Competition allows students to practice and improve their negotiation and mediation skills by simulating mediations in which the teams of two students, one acting as a lawyer and one as a client, attempt to solve a series of legal problems through collaboration and creative problem solving. Lauren Cohen and Hannah Katz won second place in the competition. The teams were coached by Associate Editor Derek Ng and Senior Editor Joshua Roseman.

Merhige Environmental Negotiation Competition

The Robert R. Merhige, Jr. National Environmental Negotiation Competition is held at the University of Richmond Law School in honor of the late United States District Court Judge Merhige. Each year, the University of Richmond Client Counseling and Negotiation Board honors his legacy through the spirit of this competition. The competition took place from March 2-3, 2019. This year, Cardozo sent a team comprising of Managing Editor Cami Lopez and Neelam Bhagrath. The team was coached by Senior Editor Carly Manger.

INADR International Law School Mediation Tournament

From March 14-17, 2019, the Cardozo ADR Competition Honor Society competed in the International Law School Mediation Tournament in Athens, Greece. INADR is an international competition designed to help students understand the value of resolving disputes through mediation. Cardozo's team was comprised of Krysta Hartley, Executive Editor Dinu Ahmed, and Associate Editor Zoya Mian, and was coached by Senior Editor Angela Li. The team advanced to the semifinal round and Dinu Ahmed won 3rd place as Best Individual Mediator.

NYSBA Inaugural Mediation Tournament

The Inaugural Mediation Tournament is intended to display both mediation advocacy skills and mediator skills, allowing students to participate both as an attorney and as a mediator. Cardozo's team, comprised of Senior Editor Alexia Landesman, Senior Editor Joshua Roseman, and Senior Editor Courtney Kaplar, competed on March 22-23, 2019. The team was also coached by Senior Editor Courtney Kaplar. NYSBA is a great opportunity to gain valuable mediation experience, attend trainings led by the top experts in the field, and to network with top mediation enthusiasts.

Thomas Jefferson School of Law National Sports Law Competition

The annual NSLNC competition in San Diego, California was created by sports and academic professionals with law students in mind as they enter the legal community. NSLNC's purpose is to give law students a great experience, competition, and place to meet like minds in the sports law industry. NSLNC was held from March 29 – March 31, 2019 and was the first time that Cardozo sent a team to this competition. The team consisted of Lu Stefanos and Emily Sappol, and was coached by Senior Editor Alex Sable. The Cardozo team finished as the first-runner up out of the 32 teams from all over the nation. NSLNC's mission is to provide the sports profession with able legal minds through negotiation competition training. The fact patterns negotiated allow students to focus on more than one area of sports law, including: contract negotiation, trading of players, salary demands, endorsement contracts, athlete and sports professionals' family and personal issues, and intellectual property.

South Texas College of Law Houston Energy Law Negotiation Competition

The Energy Law Negotiation Competition provides students with an opportunity to develop their negotiation skills with real world fact patterns based on current issues in the field of energy law. Students specifically interested in pursuing a career in energy law also have a wonderful opportunity to network with experienced energy lawyers in Houston, the energy capital of the country, during a networking reception sponsored by law firms Haynes & Boone and Gray Reed & McGraw. What makes this competition unique is that every student competitor is guaranteed to be judged by experts in the oil and gas field. This year, Lauren Gershoni and Armand Zappa represented Cardozo and were coached by Senior Editor Kayla Callahan. The competition took place from April 6-7, 2019.

26th Annual Willem C. Vis International Commercial Arbitration Moot Competition

The Vis Competition in Vienna, Austria promotes the study of international commercial law and arbitration for law students from around the world. The competition was held from April 12- 18, 2019, and included the submission of two written briefs in December 2018 and January 2019, respectively, followed by oral argument in Vienna. The Cardozo team consisted of Chana Zelcer, Alex Muench, Danielle Stein, and Ben Rosenshteyn. After the submission of their final brief in January, the team participated in practice moots hosted by Gibson Dunn, Cravath, Fordham, NYU, the ICDR-AAA, and the City Bar. Over three hundred-fifty teams from more than seventy countries participated in oral arguments in Vienna. Chana Zelcer received an honorable mention for the Martin Domke Award for Individual Oralist at the closing ceremony for her excellence in advocacy. The team was coached by Executive Editor Leo Bronshteyn and Adjunct Professor Peter Halprin.

8. Clinics

- Mediation Clinic

The Mediation Clinic is an 8 credit, 2 semester clinical program in which 16 students are trained and supervised in mediating cases at community dispute resolution centers, small claims and the pro se civil courts, high schools, and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC), while studying the broad field of alternative dispute resolution. The Mediation Clinic was founded in 1985 and has been offered each year since. In addition to the educational value of the Mediation Clinic, Cardozo is proud of the community service the Clinic provides. Clinic participants are trained to be mediators in the fall semester of their program. However, in the spring semester they are approved community mediators servicing difficult and diverse cases in a variety of venues. In addition, each student gives a presentation on conflict resolution to community or other groups. Students may elect after the fall semester to take only a 2-credit Advanced Mediation Practicum and/or a 2-credit ADR Writing Seminar in the spring. This year Cardozo students reported participation in 198 cases, either as an apprentice mediator (observing or co-mediating) or as a mediator. For all the cases, the agreement or resolution rate was 48%.

As in past years, the Mediation Clinic was popular. A total of 119 students applied for the sixteen clinic openings.

- Divorce Mediation Clinic

In the Spring of 2010, Cardozo Law School was selected by the New York State Office of Court Administration to create a divorce mediation program to bring the benefits of family mediation to the public. The Cardozo Divorce Mediation Clinic was established as a result. Over the last ten years, the Cardozo Divorce Mediation Clinic has offered competitively-selected law students each semester an opportunity to gain practical mediation experience and develop matrimonial drafting skills, while offering critical, cost-free divorce services to residents of New York City and the metropolitan region. The Cardozo program provides mediation services at the courthouse at 80 Centre Street in Manhattan three days each week, working with couples screened by the Office of Court Administration; it is remarkable among law school clinical programs in affording students the responsibility to mediate the complete range of a couple's economic issues as well as parenting provisions. Working under the direct supervision of Robert Kirkman Collins, a professor with over thirty-five years of divorce mediation experience in private practice, students assist separating couples resolve the full range of the issues presented by their divorce – the parenting schedule and decision-making protocols for their children, the equitable division of their assets and liabilities, a calculation of basic child support and allocation of major parental expenses, the setting of spousal support, the negotiation of appropriate insurance coverage, and a navigation through the tax issues triggered by divorce. Upon completion of catalyzing the couples' discussions (which typically require from two to five mediation sessions) students assume responsibility for drafting the parties' legal Separation Agreement and preparing and filing the complex set of papers and forms needed to obtain an uncontested decree of divorce.

During the decade of its operation, the Cardozo Divorce Mediation Clinic has assisted some 450 couples traverse the bewildering process of marital separation – without cost to them and with a minimization of rancor—and contributed what's been calculated as approaching $ 1,000,000 in legal services to the City. The program has directly benefited members of the public who could not otherwise have afforded experienced guidance through their divorce, and aided the judiciary by resolving several complex cases directly referred to the Cardozo Clinic from the bench. In addition, many law students have reported the Divorce Mediation Clinic to have been the highlight of their educational experience at Cardozo, and a number of Clinic alumni have gone on to incorporate divorce mediation into their practices after graduation.

As in past years, the Divorce Mediation Clinic was popular. A total of 48 students applied for the nine clinic openings.

- Securities Arbitration Clinic

The Securities Arbitration Clinic represents claimants who cannot afford an attorney and who have securities or commodities-related claims arising from improper actions by retail securities brokers and/or broker-dealers, and/or to correct mistakes or problems with executions of customer orders. The majority of the Clinic's clients are elderly and retired, others include disabled persons, persons for whom English is not their first language, young adults who have inherited some small sum of money on the passing of their parent(s), and persons with otherwise limited income. The clients' cases mostly involve arbitrations, which are tried primarily before FINRA, but the Clinic also handles matters before the NFA and AAA arbitration forums, the CFTC, and in the New York State and federal courts. During the past year, the Clinic received 15 inquiries, settled, mediated to settlement, or otherwise resolved 4, currently has two cases pending before FINRA, and 3 cases currently under investigation. The remainder of the cases either presented claims that were not actionable; were barred by the statute of limitations and/or arbitration eligibility rules; or involved parties who were in jurisdictions to which the Clinic's student practice order does not extend. To date, the Clinic has recovered judgments of over $2 million on behalf of its clients.

The Clinic also does other advocacy work in the form of comment letters on proposed SEC and FINRA regulations. The Clinic is staffed by eight students, and one full-time Director/Clinical Faculty member, Professor Elizabeth Goldman.

As in past years, the Securities Arbitration Clinic was popular. A total of 64 students applied for the eight clinic openings.
