TIPS FOR TABLE TALK STYLE NETWORKING

Plan out which employers you want to focus on most and have a few talking points or questions ready.

Do some research. At this stage, you don't need to know everything you would know at an interview, but it is helpful to understand the main work an employer does so you can focus on more substantive information.

Arrive on time and be flexible. If your preferred employer's table is full, use your time productively, and join another table to make other connections in the interim. You never know which employer will be a surprise fit!

Ask for contact info for anyone you want to connect with afterwards while you are at their table.

Remember that other students are hoping to speak with the employer too; please don't overstay or linger for too long.

Jot down some notes when you're done so you can remember what you discussed.

HIGHLIGHTED EMPLOYERS

50+ employers will attend, including legal non-profits, district attorney and public defender offices, and government agencies.

POTENTIAL TOPICS YOU CAN DISCUSS

What opportunities are available for law students? What are your suggestions on how to apply?

What skills and experiences are most useful to prepare interns and post-grad attorneys for success at the organization?

What is the most rewarding part of your work at your organization? What is most challenging?

How is your organization different from others in the same field of law or community?

How does the organization build trust with people in the community, specifically low-income communities or communities of color?

What is the workplace culture like?

Are there any specific experiences you had that made you interested in working on the issues addressed by your organization?
