LAW AND IDENTITY IN COMPARATIVE PERSPECTIVE: REFLECTIONS ON DEBRA KAPLAN’S BEYOND EXPULSION: JEWS, CHRISTIANS, AND REFORMATION STRASBOURG

A PANEL DISCUSSION

THE CENTER FOR JEWISH LAW AND CONTEMPORARY CIVILIZATION
THE LEONARD AND BEA DIENER INSTITUTE OF JEWISH LAW

SUNDAY, APRIL 21
6 PM
CARDozo SCHOOL OF LAW
MOOT COURT ROOM
NEW YORK, NY
How does law shape communal identity and foster group solidarity? Debra Kaplan’s recent book, Beyond Expulsion: Jews, Christians, and Reformation Strasbourg, explores how laws promulgated in 16th-century Strasbourg limiting contact between Christians and Jews were not intended to govern practice but rather to construct communal identity. In order to facilitate comparative discussion, panelists will reflect on this function of law in other contexts, including international law, American Constitutional law and Israeli law.

Join us as we host a panel discussion devoted to themes in Debra Kaplan’s recent book on Jewish-Christian relations in Reformation Strasbourg.

To register online, visit www.cardozo.yu.edu/cjl/registration or call 212.790.0258.

For more information on The Center for Jewish Law and Contemporary Civilization, visit our website at www.cardozo.yu.edu/cjl